Programme Overview

Brief outline of the programme

BA English Literature, Language and Linguistics is an innovative degree programme which supplements your learning of English language with a range of modules in English literature and linguistics. You will study the linguistic systems underlying English, exploring in detail how the language is structured, acquired, used and taught. In addition you will study the relationship between language and context, and between the society and the individual. You will study both written and spoken language and English will be related both to literary texts and to everyday discourse, and will also be studied in the context of its status as a global language.

Your contact hours will vary depending on your module/option choices. Full information about contact hours is provided in individual module profiles.
Your contact hours will vary depending on your module/option choices. Full information about contact hours is provided in individual module profiles.

Learning and teaching

You will be helped to achieve the learning outcomes of the English minor by a broad portfolio of learning and assessment experiences.

- Lectures and seminars: these two activities form the backbone of the teaching. The former can provide knowledge, instruction in method, and skills in an economical, controlled, and communal way. It is teacher-led learning. The latter involves student discussion, which may be more or less formal, and more or less student-led, and may at higher levels and in appropriate modules, involve very light supervision. However, the distinction is not always clear: lectures may turn more towards seminar discussion, and may involve exercises, question and answer sessions, communal interpretation of visual material, and so on. Longer classes, whether lectures or seminars, are likely to involve a range of activities, such as lecture, student presentations (singly or in groups), use of digital, audio-visual material, etc. Seminar discussion also varies in style, and will frequently require teamwork and promote interpersonal skills.

- Your own research: you will be required to carry out personal research at all levels in the programme, but increasingly through parts 2 and 3. Independence in learning is the hallmark of the maturing student of English at Southampton.

- Giving Presentations: presenting your ideas orally as well as in writing will be an important aspect of your work here. It is something you have to learn (and on which you are assessed) and an activity which helps you learn about your subject. There will be plenty of opportunities to practise your skills at oral presentation and these may form part of your assessment.

- IT: English in the School of Humanities uses IT in its teaching, e.g., Blackboard (which is used throughout the programme); PowerPoint; email discussion lists, student presentations posted to the group electronically in advance of seminars, feedback on group exercises, etc. You will learn to access this material and, with guidance, to provide it.

Assessment

A varied portfolio of assessment activities is central to the Southampton English experience, and one of the ways we ensure the high quality of our graduates. It will help to develop your intellectual flexibility both for the study itself and for future work. The following methods are used currently:

- assessment of a written version of an oral presentation
- module journals
- diary or project record
- essays from 1k to 3k words in length
- “take-away” papers
- “closed” examinations using questions of varying formats: essay-type; practical analyses; multiple short, information-based.
- “closed” examinations whose questions have been pre-released up to 48 hours prior to the exam date
- Some modules may use student self-assessment and team work, such as group feedback on seminars to a discussion list, as aids to learning (without formally assessing these activities).

For further information on any of the above, please consult the English website http://www.soton.ac.uk/english/
Special Features of the programme

Opportunity to Study a Minor Subject

The structure of your degree programme allows you to exercise choice in each year of study. You can exercise this choice in a number of ways.

- You can use these modules to deepen your knowledge of your main subject
- You can combine additional modules from your main subject with modules from other disciplines or choose from a selection of interdisciplinary modules.
- You can choose modules that build into a minor pathway, the title of which will be mentioned in your degree transcript. Details of the minors available and the modules that are included can be found at www.southampton.ac.uk/cip.

Please note: As a research-led University, we undertake a continuous review of our programmes to ensure quality enhancement and to manage our resources. As a result, this programme may be revised during a student's period of registration; however, any revision will be balanced against the requirement that the student should receive the educational service expected. Please read our Disclaimer to see why, when and how changes may be made to a student’s programme.

Programmes and major changes to programmes are approved through the University's programme validation process which is described in the University's Quality handbook.

Educational Aims of the Programme

The aims of the programme are to:

Programme Learning Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

On successful completion of this programme you will have knowledge and understanding of:

A1. the internal structure of contemporary English, including knowledge of its phonetics and phonology (sound system), morphology, syntax, semantics, lexis and pragmatics;
A2. some of the main ways of analysing English text and discourse, including for example conversation analysis, aspects of stylistics, semiotics and discourse analysis (including critical discourse analysis);
A3. the history of English, including its ongoing development;
A4. key geographical and social determinants of variation in English, including a number of the main regional varieties of English in the British Isles and global varieties of English, as appropriate;
A5. the role of language within the broader field of communication, including its role in constructing individual and group identities;
A6. how language produces and reflects cultural change and difference; the implications of language choices, for example in constructing particular registers and styles;
A7. the distinctive character of texts written in the principal literary genres, fiction, poetry and drama, and of other kinds of writing and communication
A8. the range of literatures in English and of regional and global varieties of the English language
A9. the structure, levels and discourse functions of the English language
A10. linguistic, literary, cultural and socio-historical contexts in which literature is written and read
A11. useful and precise critical terminology and, where appropriate, linguistic and stylistic terminology
A12. the range and variety of approaches to literary study, which may include creative practice, performance, and extensive specialisation in critical and/or linguistic theory
A13. how literature and language produce and reflect cultural change and difference
A14. the multi-faceted nature of the discipline, and of its complex relationship to other disciplines and forms of knowledge

Teaching and Learning Methods

- Coherent and progressive combination of modules from both disciplines across all Parts of the programme.
- Progression from introductory, broadly contextualising modules in Part 1 to more specialised modules in Part 2, and to research-based modules and the compulsory double-module dissertation in the final Part which should be based on the interface between English Literature and English Language.
- Enhancement of your knowledge and understanding through lectures and other tutor-led teaching. Lecturers also give extensive guidance, especially through reading lists and recommended reference and source material, the latter in the target language wherever possible. Lectures will also develop the skills of summarising and processing information, mentally and through note-taking.
- Developing your learning in the more student-led context of seminars, presentations, guided independent study and the preparation of written assignments. All modules use on-line material and some make use of discussion boards, where students and staff exchange knowledge and commentary. Depending on the assignment type, written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to enable you to identify the strengths and weaknesses of your knowledge and to continue to develop it effectively.
• Taking progressively more responsibility for your own learning and for the conduct of classes, as you move through the Programme.

Assessment Methods

Your knowledge and understanding will be assessed in a variety of ways including examinations and coursework. Examinations test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding, often asking you to present an argument within a very limited period of time. Coursework may include tasks such as critical literature reviews, case studies, essays, written reports, class presentations and group projects. These tasks test your ability to apply your knowledge and understanding of a subject, normally with full access to reference sources, and to construct an in-depth argument over a much longer period of time.

You will also do a compulsory double-module Dissertation in the final Part. The dissertation tests your in-depth and critical understanding of a topic which you have been able to investigate at length.

Subject Specific Intellectual and Research Skills

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

B1. define, present and exemplify concepts;
B2. identify concepts and data relevant to the task in hand;
B3. select, synthesise and focus information from a range of sources in both English Language and Literature
B4. analyse and discuss theoretical questions;
B5. apply knowledge, understanding and analysis critically to different topics
B6. formulate and defend personal judgements clearly and persuasively on the basis of evidence;
B7. engage with subject matter and opinion in both breadth and depth;
B8. understand, apply and evaluate different methodologies;
B9. formulate and clarify critical questions
B10. collect, analyse and present empirical data (where appropriate);
B11. analyse and question assumptions and received opinion and propose alternatives.
Teaching and Learning Methods

- The ability to work in breadth and depth and to develop a range of cognitive skills is ensured by coherently structured pathways through a broad programme.
- Lectures will develop the skills of summarising and processing information, mentally and through note-taking.
- Cognitive skills are developed in student-led classes—seminars, presentations, discussions, group projects—from the outset of the programme. As you move into the later Parts, you will be required to take more responsibility for your classes and thus to develop and demonstrate the full range of cognitive skills in a public setting.
- You will develop cognitive skills through researching and writing essays throughout the programme. As you move into the third Part of the programme, you will experience more challenging learning tasks—involving personal research, in-depth study and analysis and the production of long complex texts—in the form of the double-module dissertation in the final Part.
- Depending on the assignment type, written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to help you identify the strengths and weaknesses of your cognitive skills and to continue to develop them effectively through content, style and presentation.

Assessment Methods

- Examinations and coursework. Examinations, whether written or oral, test your overall thinking skills in conditions where time and support for reflection are limited, as often in real life. Coursework assessment provides formative and summative testing against the intended learning outcomes of the module concerned.
- Assessment tasks are directly related to learning outcomes of modules and usually integrate thinking skills with knowledge outcomes. For example, a class presentation and discussion on a specialist topic tests your ability to think through and organise your material in preparation, and to think on your feet in discussion, as well as testing your topic knowledge, interactive skills, strategic competence, and in some cases your linguistic accuracy and fluency.
- Other appropriate assessment tasks for this degree programme could be reflective journals, study notes and workshop assignments, such as phonetics mini tests.

Transferable and Generic Skills

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

C1. communicate effectively and confidently in English, both orally and in writing, including being able to engage an audience in discussion and sustaining a long and complex piece of writing;
C2. demonstrate intercultural competence;
C3. plan and organise your learning through self-management;
C4. exercise independence and initiative;
C5. adhere to guidelines and deadlines;
C6. work effectively alone and in collaboration with others to solve problems and/or carry out a task;
C7. set and monitor goals, reflect on your own learning, and learn from feedback;
C8. take notes and keep records;
C9. use libraries, archives, learning resources and ICT to access relevant information;
C10. produce writing in appropriate genres and to required conventions, including referencing and
Teaching and Learning Methods

- The Part 1 induction programme introduces you to learning strategies and methods, and also ensures that you sign up for training sessions in the use of ICT and for an introduction to the University Library. Your experience of all these induction activities is monitored during personal tutorials. Study skills and writing workshops are available throughout the year on request.

- Broadly speaking in the fields, the emphasis in Part 1 is on developing basic bibliographical and referencing skills, producing written work according to academic conventions, on making individual and group presentations and developing an independent approach to learning. We also encourage you to develop good computer skills.

- In Part 2 the stress is on developing the kind of research skills and independent learning strategies which will prepare you to make the most of Part 3, and prepare you for your dissertation. This includes working with others on group tasks.

- In the final Part we stress advanced research skills, including the evaluation of the roles of primary and secondary sources, and developing the ability to develop a sustained argument in writing and to give academic oral presentations.

- Written, in-class and tutorial feedback is given to help you to identify the strengths and weaknesses of your key skills and as the Faculty implements student profiling, you will be required to monitor and evaluate your own progress in key skills with your personal academic tutor.

Assessment Methods

- The effectiveness of your communication, learning and research skills is tested through both assessed coursework and examinations, which variously involve writing of different kinds, group and individual projects, and oral presentation and other interactive tasks.

- Your use of ICT implicitly contributes to your assessment since it is a necessary condition for presenting much of your work and for communicating with your tutors. The specialist skills of language learning are explicitly assessed through a wide range of tasks and activities.

Subject Specific Practical Skills

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

D1. This programme offers opportunities for language study and research in real world contexts, such as work places. There is a possibility of providing structured ways for you to enhance your employability skills by researching language at work. For example, students intending to teach could study teacher-pupil interactions, the language environment of classrooms, or the way in which displays in school entrances or the front pages of websites convey institutional values and priorities. These types of study will involve you thinking and planning for ethical approaches to research, which would be part of research methods training. There would also be the opportunity for you to follow the student ambassador scheme HUMA2007 or HUMA 6007.
Disciplinary Specific Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this programme you will be able to:

E1. the methods by which language and texts of different kinds can be analysed
E2. language and texts in their historical and generic aspects
E3. the interaction of language, text, and culture, all of these terms being taken in a broad sense
E4. the political dimensions of language and texts, including gender politics, class, capitalism, and the historical development of English in relation to colonialism, diaspora, and postcolonialism

Programme Structure

Information about pre and co-requisites is included in individual module profiles.

Where optional modules have been specified, the following is an indicative list of available optional modules, which are subject to change each academic year. Please note in some instances modules have limited spaces available.

Part I

Programme details:

The programme is divided into modules. Credit is awarded for achievement of the learning outcomes of each module studied. Full-time students take the equivalent of eight single modules in each Part, four in each semester. Single modules have a credit value of 7.5 ECTS (15 CATS), while double modules have a value of 15 ECTS (30 CATS); each Part has a total credit value of 60 ECTS (120 CATS). Part-time students take a minimum of 2 and a maximum of 6 modules per Part.

One module in each semester will be the English language element. This is a compulsory component of the programme for each Part and there are other compulsory components in the first Part. In the English language modules you will have the opportunity to work on all aspects of the language and practise a range of skills: for example, you will build up a systematic knowledge of grammar and vocabulary, develop strategies for reading and listening, and practise writing and speaking in a range of styles and contexts. You will also choose a number of optional modules in each Part.

First Part modules contribute to the qualifying examination, which must be passed at honours level before a student may proceed to Part 2. A pass in this examination provides the possibility of exit with a Certificate of Higher Education.

Second Part modules contribute to the Part 2 examination, a pass in this examination providing the possibility of exit with a Diploma of Higher Education. Second Part modules are single-weighted in the calculation of the final degree result.

Final Part modules contribute to the result of the final examination, as do those awarded in Part 2, but they are double-weighted in the calculation of the final degree result. All students have to do a double module dissertation.

The programme structure table is below. Information about pre and co-requisites is included in individual module profiles.

Progression Requirements

The programme follows the University's regulations for Progression, Determination and Classification of Results: Undergraduate and Integrated Masters Programmes and Progression, Determination and Classification of Results: Postgraduate Master's Programmes as set out in the University Calendar: http://www.calendar.soton.ac.uk/sectionIV/sectIV-index.html

Support for student learning

There are facilities and services to support your learning some of which are accessible to students across the University and some of which will be geared more particularly to students in your particular Faculty or discipline area.

The University provides:

- library resources, including e-books, on-line journals and databases, which are comprehensive and up-to-date; together with assistance from Library staff to enable you to make the best use of these resources
- high speed access to online electronic learning resources on the Internet from dedicated PC Workstations onsite and from your own devices; laptops, smartphones and tablet PCs via the Eduroam wireless network. There is a wide range of application software available from the Student Public Workstations.
- computer accounts which will connect you to a number of learning technologies for example, the Blackboard virtual learning environment (which facilitates online learning and access to specific learning resources)
- standard ICT tools such as Email, secure filestore and calendars.
- access to key information through the MySouthampton Student Mobile Portal which delivers timetables, Module information, Locations, Tutor details, Library account, bus timetables etc. while you are on the move.
- IT support through a comprehensive website, telephone and online ticketed support and a dedicated helpdesk in the Hartley Library.
- Enabling Services offering support services and resources via a triage model to access crisis management, mental health support and counselling. Support includes daily Drop In at Highfield campus at 13.00 - 15.00 (Monday, Wednesday and Friday out of term-time) or via on-line chat on weekdays from 14.00 – 16.00. Arrangements can also be made for meetings via Skype.
- assessment and support (including specialist IT support) facilities if you have a disability, long term health problem or Specific Learning Difficulty (e.g. dyslexia).

Career Opportunities

Our academic syllabus has been designed with student employability in mind, and our teaching methods foster the self-awareness, confidence, social vision, and ability to work effectively within a large organization that all successful professionals need. We will teach you a range of language, communication, problem solving and team work skills that would be difficult to acquire in any other way. As you progress through your degree, you will have opportunities to develop as an independent thinker and practise transferable skills related to written and oral expression such as presentation, chairing and leading discussion and debate, collaborative work and peer review. In particular, we place a special emphasis on the relationship between writing, reading and employability in the core module 'Narrative and Culture' that all students take in their first year of undergraduate study. Our policy for developing those skills throughout the degree is set out in full in the undergraduate student handbook.
